axioma can be configured in any imaginable shape to suit the needs of modern office.

It is not a panel-dependent system, therefore, it allows the designer to remove any given panel and exchange it for another one made of glass, fabric or metal, with no need to disassemble the complete workstation.

axioma offers an efficient and versatile solution for electrical cables and wiring problems. In fact, electrical cables, sockets and connections are housed in the main structure of the vertical 90° and 120° columns and in the horizontal compartments specially designed for this purpose.

One panel can house these receptacles and multi-circuit units for users on one side or double sided.
